Volcanoes of Ecuador

Sajama National Park is home to a fascinating volcanic complex, located very close to the mighty Sajama Volcano – the highest peak in Bolivia, standing at 6,542 meters above sea level. This inactive stratovolcano lies within Sajama National Park (Oruro) and is renowned for its imposing glaciers, unique queñua forests, and soothing hot springs.

The Payachatas – Parinacota and Pomerape – often called the twin volcanoes, rise over 6,000 meters and are located approximately 20 km from Sajama. Another notable peak, the Acotango Volcano, is among the other imposing mountains that shape the volcanic landscape of the Western Cordillera.

For mountaineers and climbers, this region presents an extraordinary challenge climbing up 4 mountains

- Ruccu Pichincha (15,708 ft. / 4,696 msnm.)
- Iliniza North (16,950 ft. / 5,248 msnm.)
- Cotopaxi (9,347 ft. / 5,897 m.s.n.m)
- Chimborazo (20,564 ft/ 6,268 msnm.)
